Organizational Feasibility

  This project is manageable, and our team will be able to complete the information system that we have been hired to create. The skills our team members have are strong enough to complete this project. Each team member has their strengths, and that will be an advantage when creating different aspects of the information system. We have a wide array of resources available to our team. We have tutorials, classes, and other people as resources if one of our team members is unsure of how to perform a particular task.